

H1897

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Real-time analysis and control of a semiconductor silicidation process. The architecture includes system and methods for monitor and control of a silicidation process during rapid thermal anneal. An FTIR system analyzes selected and/or random regions where silicidation is occurring, and signals the process control system to control the process according to the status of the analyzed silicide formations.